

The Pantry

Fruit and vegetables need proper storage.
Three maple wood crates stacked one on top of the other for the proper storage of produce. Marie Nemeth and Silvia Stocker from studiotut developed this archetype for a modern table top pantry. In the past, a household without proper storage for fruit and vegetables would have been unthinkable. Handcrafted to the highest standards and clearly in tune with the current zeitgeist, studiotut gives this time-honoured functional space a fresh twist.
Three modular, stackable crates offer ideal storage and ripening space. The bottom tier is for produce that prefers the dark. The middle tier offers space for "ethylene dispensers" such as apples and pears. Through the openings in the bottom of the top tier, the ripening gas ethylene can rise and aid the ripening of fruits and vegetables stored there.
Handwerk+Form winner 2018.

Design: studiotut (Marie Nemeth, Silvia Stocker)
Year: 2018
Material: maple
Manufacturer: Tischlerei Bereuter
Photography: Adolf Bereuter

Food storage box: die Speis: € 305,00

(Price incl. VAT, excl. shipping)

Hirnholz, Hof 35, A 6951 Lingenau
19.11.2026