

TableBoard

Quality is never a matter of chance; it is always a conscious choice.
We have become so accustomed to the inferior fabrication and materials of some products that we no longer consciously question them, let alone perceive them as objects of interior design. To rethink and question the familiar is the task of the designer, in this case Martin Bereuter.
The TableBoard is a tool designed to facilitate the analogue exchange of ideas. When working together at a table, sketches and notes can be made directly on paper or on the magnetic board surface. This surface can then be propped up for the presentation. Solid ash wood, brass fittings developed in collaboration with Gerola Metalltechnik and hand-crafted production – that's what our TableBoard stands for. A stark contrast to the drab, grey standard equipment we all know, it takes a stand in studio spaces, coaching sessions or in sophisticated seminar settings. Good thoughts need beautiful spaces, and the TableBoard helps create them.
